EXPERIENCE

Programmer, Recurse Center

New York, NY — Spring 2016

The Recurse Center is a self-directed, educational retreat for programmers

Personal Projects

- Hacker News Article Topics – A script that extracts keyword and topic models from articles, written in Python
 - Created script to scrape articles and clean text in preparation for natural language processing
 - Designed topic model using the latent Dirichlet allocation and a keyword model using NLTK
- Backtrack Robot – A path-finding program using the backtracking algorithm, written in Python
 - Introduced and optimized memoization of failed paths
 - Initially wrote loose imperative design, then refactored code into an OOP design
- Speed Pong – A fast-paced take on the classic Pong game, written in JavaScript
 - Learned some of the standard JavaScript practices including ES6, Webpack, and Mocha tests
 - Used the Canvas API, wrote collision detection and physics simulations

Profesor de Inglés, IES Marqués de los Velez

Murcia, Spain — 2013-2014

- Helped the department realize a better education platform, and compiled a digital resource record for them
- Independently organized an after-school workshop with students, and coordinated a week-long, in-school discussion about civil rights issues across the globe

Director de Inglés, Grupo Avanza

Murcia, Spain — 2013-2014

- Earned the loyalty and trust of students by devoting myself to their improvement, increasing their achievement and return rate
- Co-designed new, extended curriculum for children and oversaw training the startup to use it
